why REBR

and methodology.

why employer branding matters.

Companies with positive brands get twice as many applications as companies with negative brands, and they spend less money on employees.¹

50%

of candidates say they wouldn't work for a company with a bad reputation – even with a pay increase.¹

80%

of workforce leaders agree that a strong employer brand has a significant impact on their ability to hire great workforce.² People work for cultures, not companies, their perception of you as an employer is of paramount importance.

96%

agree that alignment of personal values with a company's culture is a key factor in their satisfaction working there.³

62%

of candidates research companies on social media before applying.⁵

88%

millennials and minorities agree that being part of the right company culture really matters to them.³

companies with bad reputations pay 10% more per hire.⁴

87%

joined a company specifically because of cultural fit.³

80%

have left a company specifically because of its culture.³

what is the randstad employer brand research?

each company known

rating on a set of drivers:
determines reason for Attractiveness.

randomly assigned

the 30 companies shown to respondents are assigned randomly based on their awareness level registered in the previous year.

companies with a higher awareness are shown less often while companies with a lower awareness are shown more often. New companies are shown 1400 times for the first time they are researched.

number of evaluations

the smart sampling method ensures a mix between more and lesser known companies and also that the number of evaluations per company is between n=140 and n=400. This base is statistically robust for being able to draw generalized conclusions about the findings.

the employer brand roadmap.

how can you secure the budget to allow you to start an EVP project? Business leaders will expect a measurable set of returns – the more clearly they are defined, the greater the chance that senior management will sign off. Therefore your EVP should focus on the attraction and engagement piece – the area that will give you a return on investment (ROI).

example EVP ROI

- increase careers site visits
- size of candidate pipeline
- number of social media followers/likes
- careers sites applications/% conversion
- increase in referrals
- offer to acceptance ratio
- number of hires made via direct sourcing
- decrease time to hire
- decrease cost of hire/recruiting costs
- new hire satisfaction
- number of hires exceeding probationary period
- increase retention
- diversity fulfillment

start your employer brand journey with the Employer Brand Strength Assessment (EBSA). Cost – RM40,000

The RSR Employer Brand Strength Assessment (EBSA) audits your brand story online, provides insights on how you rank against other companies in the same sector, and examine your company through the lens of a job seeker as they make the journey from job search to application.

you will be audited for:

- ease of search and visibility (on digital media)
- consistency in messaging and tone, value proposition and benefits
- your digital and social brand presence
- ease of your job application process

you will get to understand:

- the effectiveness of your key messages
- how people perceive your true work culture, as your employees experience it
- how you compare to your competitors, in terms of similarities and differentiators
- any gaps between perception and reality

you will receive:

- a detailed report with a rating of your employer brand strength, including our key recommendations and best-practices for articulating your employer brand via social media, email, and other digital media build your employer brand with a bespoke solution. Cost - solution specific

Our employer branding experts can help you:

- bring the improvement matrix to life
- bridge the gap between where you want your employer brand to be and where the market currently sees it
- validate the issues and challenges driving the gap between internal and external brand perceptions and build a roadmap to address them your bespoke employer brand solution will include:

appendix 2.

methodology

why smart sampling?

In the past, companies were evaluated by 140 to 1400 respondents. Having analysed the data and error margins, it was concluded that a large sample was not necessary when reliable data can also be obtained with a smaller sample size. Therefore, since REBR 2017 companies are evaluated between 140 and 400 respondents. The actual number of evaluations per company depends on the awareness of the company.

The error margin is determined by the % of respondents giving a certain answer and the sample size to which the question has been asked. The highest error margin occurs when 50% of the respondents give a certain answer. The error margin is lower when 30% (or 70%) of the respondents give a certain answer.

140 respondents have evaluated company X. Of these 140, 50% find the company nice to work for. Taking the error margin at $n=140/50\%$ into account, the real answer lies between 42% and 58%.

400 respondents have evaluated company Y and of these 400, 50% finds the company nice to work for. Taking the error margin at $n=400/50\%$ into account, the real answer lies between 45% and 55%.

1200 respondents have evaluated company Z and of these 1200, 50% finds the company nice to work for. Taking into account the error margin at $n=1200/50\%$, the real answer lies between 47% and 53%.

Therefore, the difference in error margin is very small between $n=1200$ and $n=400$ evaluations per company (5% margin vs 3% margin at the most). As such it can be concluded that maximum 400 evaluations per company are sufficient in order to determine a reliable attractiveness per company.

In practice, this means that every company with an awareness over 35% will have max 400 respondents evaluating the company. Companies with an awareness below 35% will be evaluated by 140 to 400 people (depending on awareness).
